ALERT, Warning Immigrants of Legal Assistance Fraud

Federal, State, and Local Government, Law Enforcement and Community Leaders warned that immigrants seeking legal assistance should take precautions against scammers seeking to take advantage of them with incorrect, misleading, or false information. Officials expect that these scammers will use the delay in President Obama's Executive Action on Immigration programs to confuse immigrant consumers into being defrauded out of their hard-earned money, and endanger their ability to stay and work in this country.

Due to a federal court order delaying immigration relief, the federal government will not begin accepting requests for Deferred Action for Parents of Americans and Lawful Permanent Residents (DAPA), nor for the expanded Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA), until later in 2015. This delay in the implementation of the immigration programs may lead to more immigrant New Yorkers being defrauded by con artists posing as immigration attorneys or authorized immigration representatives, who charge fees for services that are never provided.

Immigrant consumers should make sure to get advice from the right person - whether you are renewing your Green Card, applying for naturalization or citizenship, or trying to choose the right forms.

• Only lawyers and representatives accredited by the Board of Immigration Appeals

Council Members Chin & Vallone:
A City Budget With No New Funding For Seniors is Not a Responsible Budget

Mayor's Preliminary Budget Includes No New Funding for Senior Services; City Council's Aging Committee Vows to Fight for New Funds

On March 23 the City Council's Committee on Aging and Subcommittee on Senior Centers held a joint preliminary budget hearing to discuss the funding needs for the city's Department for the Aging (DFTA).

Following that hearing, and responding to the fact that Mayor de Blasio did not include any new DFTA funding in his Fiscal Year 2016 preliminary budget, Council Member Margaret Chin, chair of the Committee on Aging, and Council Member Paul Vallone, chair of the Subcommittee on Senior Centers, released the following joint statement:

"Seniors are one of New York City's fastest growing populations. There are 1.4 million adults aged 60 and over in our city, totaling more than 17 percent of our residents. By 2030, the senior population is projected to grow by nearly 50 percent and comprise 20 percent of the city's total population.

It is often said that a city's priorities are reflected in its budget — and when Mayor de Blasio presented his Fiscal Year 2016 preliminary budget, he repeatedly stated that he believes it is fiscally responsible, progressive and honest. It is hard for us to agree that this budget is responsible, since no new funding was added for the Department for the Aging.

In order to create a more responsible budget, Mayor de Blasio should first baseline the core programs that have previously been funded by the City Council, including Expanded In-home Services for the Elderly (EISEP), social adult day care and space and transportation operating costs for senior centers. The mayor should also provide additional funding in order to restore basic services for senior centers, reduce caseloads for case management and clear the homecare waitlist. In addition, the mayor should provide more funding to expand Naturally Occurring Retirement Communities (NORCs), including those within NYCHA, where so many seniors live and where senior center funding has often been in doubt.

On these issues and others relating to senior services, we look forward to continuing the discussion with the Mayor's Office."

Assemblyman Francisco Moya's

Statement On The Dream Act

"We look to Governor Cuomo to show true leadership and to bring Senator Dean Skelos back to the table to open up talks on the DREAM Act"

"Right now, two of the 'three men in the room' negotiating the budget understand the importance of the DREAM Act and how it will benefit this state. Unfortunately, one of the three men has his head stuck in the sand. His xenophobia and lack of foresight has even made him willing to kill his own initiative, the Education Investment Tax Credit, a measure that would benefit his own constituents. He is willing to kill two educational initiatives for the sake political convenience.

We look to Governor Cuomo to show true leadership and to bring Senator Dean Skelos back to the table to open up talks on the DREAM Act, just as he has in the past with tough issues like marriage equality and the SAFE Act. On the campaign trail, Governor Cuomo made a pact with the people of New York--he said he would make sure the DREAM Act was signed into law. Now is the time to make good on that promise."

Crowley, Fortenberry Urge Passage of Legislation Establishing International Fund for Israeli-Palestinian Peace

Rep. Joe Crowley (D-NY), Vice Chair of the Democratic Caucus, and Rep. Jeff Fortenberry (R-Neb.) announced the reintroduction of the bipartisan International Fund for Israeli-Palestinian Peace Authorization Act of 2015 (H.R. 1489). First introduced in the 113th Congress, the Crowley-Fortenberry legislation would establish a multi-national fund to support grassroots programs that promote peace and reconciliation in the region.

"History has taught that no peaceful resolution may arrive, and certainly none will last, without seriously engaging the publics on both sides of the conflict," said Rep. Crowley. "The U.S. has played a significant leadership role in fostering and supporting people-to-people relations around the world, and creating this fund would continue that effort. And, this kind of work can be an antidote to terrorism because it gives people who want to work together toward reconciliation a path to do so. I urge our colleagues to join us in supporting the establishment of this much-needed Fund."

"Despite the difficulties and challenges involved in bringing about secure and sustainable peace in the Middle East, the United States has made strong bipartisan efforts over decades to help achieve this important objective," said Rep. Fortenberry. "We must continue to foster relevant and constructive dialogue among Israeli and Palestinian communities. It is my hope that grassroots reconciliation efforts, however small, may spark renewed hope for the future."

The International Fund for Israeli-Palestinian Peace would promote people-to-people efforts to build peace through grants to scale efforts at the grassroots level. The Fund's resources could assist with a wide array of programs, including education, sports, culture, cross-communal economic development, shared environmental programs, and bring youth from different communities to work together to develop a better understanding of Israeli, Palestinian, Jewish, Muslim, and Christian traditions.

Catholic Charities Establishes Relief Fund For Woodhaven Fire Victims

City Councilman Eric Ulrich, New York State Assemblyman Mike Miller, and Catholic Charities of Brooklyn and Queens (CCBQ) announced today the creation of a special relief fund to aid those families affected by the four-alarm fire in Woodhaven on the night of Wednesday, March 18, 2015. The fire damaged or destroyed eight homes and displaced more than 60 individuals.

Donations will support CCBQ's efforts to provide life essentials including gift cards to local supermarkets, clothing, replacement household furniture, and other necessities. Monetary donations can be made payable to CCBQ online at www.ccbq.org or by mail. Contributions should designate "Woodhaven Fire Victims" in the memo. For more information contact CCBQ's Office of Development & Communications at (718) 722-6202.

Catholic Charities Brooklyn & Queens

"This fund will allow Catholic Charities to help the residents of Woodhaven who lost everything on that fateful night," said Councilman Ulrich. "The proceeds that we are able to raise will really make a difference and help ease the road to recovery for these families."

"We cannot erase what occurred, but this fund will help these families work towards rebuilding for a better tomorrow" said Assemblyman Miller. "We ask the community to help in any way they can to assist these residents in this time of need."

"Our Catholic Charities Disaster Case Management team arrived to help ensure those displaced by the fire could get the help they needed to get reestablished as soon as possible," said Monsignor Alfred LoPinoto, Chief Executive Officer of Catholic Charities Brooklyn and Queens. "These families will need to start over, and Catholic Charities will be there along the way to provide for their physical and emotional needs. We ask that you please keep these families in your prayers."

Senator Gianaris, Western Queens Leaders Celebrate Permanent Q103 Service Expansion

Senator Michael Gianaris, elected officials, transit advocates and cultural institutions from Astoria and Long Island City celebrated the long-awaited permanent service expansion of the Q103 bus line, which connects the two Queens waterfront neighborhoods along Vernon Boulevard. After strong pressure from Senator Gianaris and community leaders in 2014, the MTA instituted a trial expansion for the Q103 that expanded weekday service hours and finally provided service on weekends. The trial program was a success and the MTA will now make this expansion permanent after years of advocacy.

"I am thrilled the MTA heeded my call to make this Q103 service expansion permanent. Western Queens has long needed better bus service, so it is gratifying that the MTA responded to our concerns," said Senator Michael Gianaris. "There is so much happening throughout western Queens that our need for better methods of traveling between our neighborhoods has never been more pressing. This service expansion represents a hard fought victory, but I will never stop fighting for improved transit service in our community."

"I commend the MTA on the decision to make permanent its recent trial expansion of Q103 bus service in western Queens, a fast growing area of our borough that has been in need of improved mass transit," said Queens Borough President Melinda Katz. "The area's residents and its thriving local businesses benefited from the trial expansion and will appreciate the knowledge that this expanded service will remain in place indefinitely."

"I applaud the MTA for making the Q103 service expansion permanent," said Assemblywoman Catherine Nolan. "As the Long Island City and Astoria communities continue to grow, the demand for increased bus service is greatly needed. I commend both Senator Gianaris for pushing this priority and the MTA for listening to the community."

"Connecting our dynamic neighborhoods in western Queens will allow residents to take advantage of all that our communities have to offer and begin to address the limited transit options we face," said Assemblywoman Aravella Simotas. "I applaud Senator Gianaris and the dedicated efforts of local transit advocates who fought for this improvement."

"Working with my colleagues in government we were able to secure permanent and expanded Q103 bus service for thousands of riders who have been in need of additional transportation options," said New York City Council Majority Leader Jimmy Van Bramer. "Enhancing alternative transportation services for riders here in Western Queens has always been a priority for me. With the permanent addition of the Q103 even more New Yorkers will gain access to Western Queens' cultural scene and some of the hottest neighborhoods in our City."

"With a permanent expansion to the Q103 service, the MTA just made public transportation easier for our staff, local residents, and the 100,000 visitors of the park every year," said John Hatfield, Executive Director of Socrates Sculpture Park. "We're now on our way to making the accessibility of Western Queens on par with the growing vibrancy of its arts and cultural offerings."

Jess Nizar, Senior Organizer at the Riders Alliance, said, "For bus riders, one of the most important aspects of their commutes is reliability. Now Q103 bus riders will be able to rest a little easier knowing that they can rely on their bus to show up on weekends. We thank Senator Gianaris for fighting for better transit for Queens waterfront residents, and commend the MTA for making this improvement a permanent one."

Mets Set For Opener

By Robert Elkin

Look what's right around the corner!

The baseball season is underway in the metropolitan area, with the kids on the diamond and seeing action in little leagues, Schools are set to start soon with exhibition games. Colleges are the first to get underway as the likes of St. John's University and Queens College already underway with competition.

Major league baseball already started as the New York Mets will be ending exhibition games, spring training and practice down in a much warmer climate of Florida soon to end.

And pretty soon it'll be play ball here at Citi Field.

The die-hard Met fans already bought their tickets for opening day and future games and are set for action. And it's 'Play Bal!'

The Mets open their season in Washington on April 6 with the first six games on the road, And on April13 starting 1:00 p.m. they will host Philadelphia with brief ceremonies to precede the first pitch. According to Mets' personnel, standing room only tickets are still available. The rest of the seat are all sold out.

Most of the baseball buffs is se with Matt Harvey to be the opening day starter, but not according to Mets Manager Terry Collins, for he will start pitcher Bartolo Colon.

In his last exhibition appearance, Harvey looked sharp against their cross town rivals, the Yankees. He thought differently, but not only based on the work that he has done on the mound.

To recall, Harvey is returning to work from elbow ligament- replacement surgery that sidelined him since August of 2013.

Harvey will start the third game of the opening series. Jacob DeGrom who expects to start the second contest will start the opener against Philadelphia on April 13.

It looks like all indication, the Mets will be improved in all phases of the game, especially in the pitching rotation.

Jonathan Niese, Rob Parnell and Zac Wheeler could be the other starters on the mound. Pitching could be a major strength.

Collins just said that it's one start, according to the opening day starter.

"I know it's a big deal to a lot of people," the skipper said . "To me, it's not. "It's one of 32 starts. You go back and look what Bart did all season long; he earned it.".

"Everything looks good," Harvey added. "The big thing now is getting from 60 pitches to close to 100. Obviously, the weather is going to be warmer down here in (Florida) than it is going to be up there (in New York); so getting a little extra prepared is definitely we want to do in the next two starts."

"Harvey is going to pitch a lot. Over his career he is going to pitch a lot of opening days but he doesn't really care. The whole philosophy is we have to go beat the Washington Nationals."

Council Member Vallone Announces Bayside is Chosen For City Council's Age-Friendly Neighborhoods Initiative

Council Member Vallone announced that Bayside will be joining neighborhoods from across the five boroughs in an innovative effort to make New York City a more accommodating place to grow old. The Age-friendly Neighborhoods Initiative, made possible by $400,000 in funding from the City Council in partnership with neighborhoods chosen by the New York Academy of Medicine, aims to bring forward the concerns and suggestions of older New Yorkers within particular communities in order to implement community-level changes in an effort to help ensure that these communities become more inclusive of the needs of older adults. For example, some of the programs that have arisen from this initiative include the CityBench Program, which has installed over 1000 sidewalk benches across the City; Senior Swim, which offers senior-only swim times at 16 public pools citywide; and the Age-friendly Local Business Initiative, which has engaged over 1000 small businesses in learning how to better attract and serve older customers.

There are currently over 1.4 million seniors living in New York City and this number is expected to grow significantly over the next decade. Soon 1 in every 5 New Yorkers will be an older adult. New York City is a city of neighborhoods and each community is as diverse as its residents, with different resources, strengths and needs, particularly as they relate to older adults. By cataloguing the suggestions of older adults in Bayside and leveraging these suggestions with the expertise of local non-profit, business, community and religious leaders, the City will be able to strategically improve the quality of life for seniors by increasing their access to services and local resources. Council Member Vallone will be hosting an Age-Friendly Neighborhood Town Hall Meeting on April 1st at 10:00am at the Clearview Selfhelp Senior Center located at 208-11 26th Avenue, Bayside, NY 11360

"This initiative is an incredible opportunity for Bayside to build upon the rich experiences and knowledge of its seniors," said Council Member Vallone. "By taking advantage of the very characteristic that makes this community unique, we will be able to maximize the social and economic participation of older residents. As the senior population continues to grow rapidly, I applaud the Council for taking steps to ensure that we are able to make New York City a great place for seniors to live."

Council Member Mark Weprin Hosts Annual Council Member for a Day Essay Contest

It's that time of the year again – Council Member Mark Weprin (D-Oakland Gardens) is officially accepting entries for his annual "Council Member for a Day" essay contest.

The tradition, which began when Weprin was serving in the State Assembly, gives one lucky student the opportunity to travel to City Hall, meet with colleagues, sit in for an interview with a reporter, and even review constituent concerns.

Any student in grades five through eight who wishes to participate should write a composition of no more than five hundred words on the following topic:

Imagine that you are planning a day with a friend who is coming to visit and who has never been to Queens before. You are going to give your friend a tour of Queens. Your essay should include details about how you will spend the day, describing the places you will go and what you will do.

Each entry should include the student's full name, address, telephone number, school, grade, and class. Students (or the school) should submit entries by Friday, April 24, 2015 to Council Member Mark Weprin, 73-03 Bell Boulevard, Oakland Gardens, New York 11364, by email to MWeprin@Council.NYC.gov or by fax to (718) 468-0178.

"I encourage all eligible students to enter the contest. It is a rare opportunity to learn about what goes on in City Hall," said Council Member Weprin. "I look forward to reading students' wonderful, creative essays."

One of a Kind Community Agreement For Roosevelt Avenue

As promised in her 2015 State of the District address, Council Member Julissa Ferreras, community members and the 82nd Street Partnership reached an agreement to expand the business improvement district along Roosevelt Avenue.

The agreement, the only one of its kind in New York, makes unprecedented changes to the BID model, like including street vendors, LGBTQ representatives and the youth community in its board of directors, among other innovations.

The agreement is the first example of the type of leadership and vision Leslie Ramos, executive director of the present 82nd Street Partnership, brings to the BID and shows a responsiveness and commitment to fostering the diversity and strengths the corridor already boasts.

Expanding the business improvement district is part of Council Member Ferreras' plan to bring more commerce to small businesses and create a safer, cleaner environment for Corona and Queens residents to eat, shop and live.

Free Computers For Corona Children

Eighty-seven 6th graders and their families from I.S. 61 received free computers and training this month, thanks to the support of Council Member Julissa Ferreras and CFY, a non profit whose mission is to help students in low-income communities harness the power of digital learning to improve educational outcomes.

Part of the New York City Council's Digitial Inclusion and Literacy Initiative that aims to address disparities in access to the internet and increase digital literacy, Council Member Ferreras allocated $14,705 to fund the home learning centers, which came loaded with educational software.

"Having a computer at home will significantly impact the education of our students as well as their families," said Assistant Principal Mr. Andrew Rocco, "Selecting 6th grade students would offer the greatest long-term impact while they continue to attend our school over the next three years."

Goldfeder Urges National Grid to Review Gas Installations for Plastic Pipe Suspected of Causing Harlem Blast

Following the release last week of a preliminary report by federal regulators into the 2014 gas explosion in Harlem that killed 8 people and injured 48, Assemblyman Phil Goldfeder (D - Howard Beach) called on National Grid to review its gas infrastructure in southern Queens and Rockaway to pinpoint any possible installation of a model of plastic gas pipes suspected of causing the deadly blast.

"In light of last year's explosion, we must take every precaution to prevent this horrible accident from happening again," said Assemblyman Phil Goldfeder. "Our families in southern Queens and Rockaway deserve to know that the gas pipes below their house will not fail them. That's why I'm calling on National Grid to take a close look at their work in the area and ensure that the infrastructure in place will not lead to disaster."

In a letter to National Grid U.S. President-elect Dean Seavers, Goldfeder requested that the natural gas provider conduct an audit of its infrastructure to determine if the same plastic pipe cited in the Harlem blast report had been installed at buildings in southern Queens and Rockaway serviced by the utility company. The Assemblyman wrote that many neighborhoods in the community have seen considerable work in the last few years to repair damages and upgrade infrastructure following Sandy. Goldfeder acknowledged that the federal report into the cause of the blast was still months away, but stressed that precautionary steps should be taken to help put residents' minds at ease ahead of the final report's release.

On March 12, 2014, a gas explosion at a five-story residential building in Harlem left 8 people dead and more than 48 injured. Initial reports on the blast centered on the century-old cast iron main as the likely cause of

On Sunday, in observance of National Women's History Month (NWHM), Assembly Member David I. Weprin hosted a free clinical breast cancer screenings and mammograms outside the Sikh Cultural Society in Richmond Hill, Queens. In partnership with the American-Italian Cancer Foundation (AICF) and Multi-Diagnostic Services, the examinations provided many underserved & uninsured women in the community with simple, yet vital health care services at no-cost.

"This year, in observance of NWHM, my office partnered with the AICF & Multi-Diagnostic Services to offer these valuable health services to the members and residents of Queens free-of-charge. I would like to thank all the community partners that have participated in making sure the event was a complete success; particularly the 102nd NYPD Precinct for providing us with traffic/parking assistance, the Sikh Cultural Society for allowing us to utilize their facility, and the hardworking nurses and technicians who provided the incredible services on Sunday," said Assemblyman Weprin.

Van Bramer, Finance Chair Julissa Ferreras, Council Member Costa Constantinides & Library Leaders Launch Citywide Campaign To Invest In Libraries

On March 20th, New York City Council Majority Leader Jimmy Van Bramer, Finance Chair Julissa Ferreras, Council Member Costa Constantinides, Chair, Sub-Committee on Libraries, heads of New York City's three library institutions – New York Public Library, Brooklyn Public Library and Queens Library – members of District Council 37 and library advocates from all five boroughs launched a major campaign, "Invest in Libraries," to reverse years of neglect and urge the City to appropriately fund the library system. The campaign will also release a new report detailing some of the most egregious examples of branches in need of capital funding.

The newly-formed campaign, Invest in Libraries, is a partnership between the three library systems and library supporters across the City. The campaign is calling for $1.1 billion in capital funding for critical renovations and maintenance – a mere 1% of the City's ten year Capital Plan – and a $65 million increase in operating expenses in this year's budget, to provide the programs and services New Yorkers demand and expect from their local branches at least six days a week.

City funding for public libraries has been slashed by nearly 20 percent over the last 7 years, and library staff has been reduced by over 1,000 workers. Many branches across the City aren't even able to stay open six days a week.

Long Island Clock Tower - Calendared by the Landmarks Preservation Commission!!

The former Bank of Manhattan Building, affectionately known by many as the "Clock Tower Building," in Queens Plaza, Long Island City, designed by Morrell Smith in the neo-Gothic style, was built to be a landmark. The impressive structure was constructed in 1926-27 for a high profile company, the Bank of Manhattan, as its Queens Plaza Branch. The form of Smith's tower is decidedly modern, while its details reference historical styles; the combination of the two gives the building its powerful presence on the Plaza. Its strong verticality and tapered crown are reminiscent of other contiguous towers, such as Raymond Hood's 1924 Tribune Tower in Chicago, a neo-Gothic skyscraper that also features a smaller setback tower above its very tall shaft. The height of the Clock Tower Building is emphasized and celebrated by two vertical bands of buff brick spanning the shaft's full height, which is otherwise clad in dark brick. Homage to history is found in the building's details, such as the bracketed cornice and balcony separating the base and shaft, and most overtly, the crenellated rooflines at the top of the building. The top of the tower features arched window openings and large clock faces, which lend a strong civic nature to the building and provide its neighborhood identity.

The Historic Districts Council named Long Island City one of the 2015 Six to Celebrate. HDC has been working with Michael Hall and Matthew Chrislip of +Partners and Christian Emanuel who have been advocating for the designation of the building for more than a year. We are very excited that the LPC chose to calendar this truly deserving building and anxiously await its designation.

Majority Leader Jimmy Van Bramer's Statement On The LPC's Consideration of Landmarking LIC's "Clock Tower" Building

"The Landmarks Preservation Commission's initial hearing on the "Clock Tower" Building is the first step toward landmarking one of Long Island City's most historic structures," said New York City Council Majority Leader Jimmy Van Bramer. "This is a tremendous victory for New York City preservationists and local residents who contacted my office to convey their overwhelming support to retain the character of our great neighborhood. I have long supported the designation of the "Clock Tower" as a landmark. I am pleased the LPC agrees with me and the community to preserve this historic structure. I was proud to help give this community coordinated grassroots campaign additional support to ensure the "Clock Tower" Building stands for another 90 years."

the explosion. However, a preliminary report released last week by the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) focused on a 69-foot section of 8" plastic pipe installed in 2011 by utility company Con Edison as a suspected cause of the blast. A final report is expected to be released in the coming months.

"Our natural gas providers are public utilities and have a responsibility to families to ensure safe, affordable service," concluded Goldfeder. "When it comes to highly-combustible natural gas, it's better to be safe than sorry."

NYC DOT Unveils Design Concept Woodhaven/Cross Bay Boulevards Select Bus Service

New York City Department of Transportation (NYC DOT) Commissioner Polly Trottenberg today unveiled the design concept of main road bus lanes for Select Bus Service (SBS) on Woodhaven / Cross Bay Boulevards. The SBS corridor is based on the existing Q52/53 Limited bus route and carries 30,000 daily bus riders over 14 miles from the Rockaways to Woodside. The Woodhaven SBS would be the most intensive and most beneficial SBS route to be implemented and is a vital transportation route for thousands of residents of the Rockaways and central Queens, 43% of whom do not own a car and 60% of whom commute by public transit.

DOT and MTA developed three design concepts with the goals of providing faster and more reliable bus service, safer streets for pedestrians and drivers, and maintaining traffic flow. The design concepts were presented to the community and after one year of meetings, open houses, workshops, Design Concept 2, a "transit-oriented boulevard" where buses travel in designated lanes in the main roadway, was selected. Mayor Bill de Blasio has made it a priority to improve transportation options in areas of the City beyond the reach of the subway system. The Woodhaven/Cross Bay Boulevards bus route will be an ambitious design to provide better transit service to those in Queens, while making the street work better for all users. The design will also make the street safer, supporting the City's Vision Zero goal.

This concept provides faster and more reliable bus service, allowing buses to travel free from turning or parking conflicts, with an anticipated travel time savings of 25-35%. Median transit stations with shelters, seating, and real-time bus information will be constructed, giving passengers high-quality waiting areas. Woodhaven Boulevard and Cross Bay Boulevard are both identified as Priority Corridors in the DOT's Pedestrian Safety Action Plans, with 24 fatalities since 2008 on the length of the SBS route. Aligning with Vision Zero, this design will have new medians for pedestrian refuge and a greener streetscape. There will be a physical separation of local and thru traffic, allowing thru traffic to travel free from parking and turning conflicts and local traffic to travel through calmer service roads. The different designs for Woodhaven and Cross Bay Boulevards, which will have offset bus lanes, reflect the different corridor widths, land uses and traffic patterns. Details of the design will be presented to the community for feedback at upcoming workshops.

"This is the kind of ambitious overhaul New York City's bus riders deserve. This project means faster trips for tens of thousands of riders," said Mayor Bill de Blasio. "It means safer streets that save lives. And it means that communities from the Rockaways to Elmhurst that have long been underserved by public transit will see real improvements in their daily commute. We look forward to working with the broad coalition of elected officials and local partners who have helped shape this project since the outset. "

"As a cost-effective option that will reduce travel times while increasing connectivity for thousands of New Yorkers, the Woodhaven/Cross Bay Boulevards Select Bus Service will go a long way toward meeting the needs of Queens communities that have long been underserved by public transportation," said Rep. Joe Crowley (D-Queens, the Bronx). "I thank the Department of Transportation for engaging local residents on a design that not only ensures efficient and reliable service but one that also makes safety a top priority."

"Select Bus Service will connect Queens's residents from the Far Rockaways to Woodside," said Council Member Daniel Dromm. "This Department of Transportation plan took careful consideration of how to keep traffic flowing and pedestrians safe. I support this program."

"Select Bus Service on Woodhaven Boulevard will improve the flow of traffic on one of Queens' busiest corridors and make the road safer for pedestrians and drivers alike," said Council Member Eric Ulrich.

SUMMONS AND COMPLAINT You are in danger of losing your home. If you fail to respond to the Summons and Complaint in this Foreclosure Action, you may lose your home. Please read the Summons and Complaint carefully. You should immediately contact an attorney of your local legal aid office to obtain advice on how to protect yourself. SOURCES OF INFORMATION AND ASSISTANCE The State encourages you to become informed about your options in foreclosure. In addition to seeking assistance from an attorney or legal aid office, there are government agencies and non-profit organizations that you may contact for information about possible options, including trying to work with your lender during this process. You should be extremely careful about any such promises and any suggestions that you pay them a fee or sign over your deed. State law requires anyone offering such services for profit to enter into a contract which fully describes the services they will perform and fees they will charge, and which prohibits them from taking any money from you until they have completed all such promised services. We are attempting to collect a debt. Any information obtained will be used for that purpose.
